SAN DIEGO MESA LEADERSHIP TEAM

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

For the faculty, staff and administrators at San Diego Mesa College, the year of teaching and learning offered a renewed focus to what drew us to teach and work at a community college: the ability to impact the lives of our students.

Throughout the year, we embarked on dialogue around what teaching and learning means at Mesa College, and how each of us plays a key role in it.

Workshops, events and services that centered on teaching and learning at Mesa College enabled us to engage in conversations and action plans that will take us into our 50th year as a college.

WORKSHOPS AND EVENTS

- Campus conversations: We convened “Breakfasts with the President,” so that I could meet, one-on-one, with staff and faculty.
- Convocations: At the start of each semester, stakeholders from across the college discussed college-wide learning outcome assessment methods, and analyzed and assessed the six institutional learning outcomes.
- Taking time to celebrate: Throughout the year, we engaged in activities that recognize the contributions each member of our community makes to create a comprehensive, learning college.

SERVICES

- One stop shop for students: The opening of the four-story Student Services Center offers a centralized location that brings together student resources from across the campus — under one roof for the first time in the history of the college.
- More centralized services: The decision to house a new Languages Center at the LRC underscores the facility as the learning resource destination for students in all fields of study.
- Key steps take us forward: As a college, we put into place processes and procedures that provide the best possible outcomes for student learning.
- A 21st Century College: Propositions S and N projects continue to transform the college, literally changing the landscape of teaching and learning.

These efforts and more helped to engage all members of the campus community in the creation, integration, elaboration and celebration of teaching and learning.

On the pages within, we offer a look at Mesa as a community of learning with a commitment to our profession at all levels. You will find stories, profiles and examples of excellence of those who teach, those who learn, and those that support teaching and learning at Mesa College.

Sincerely,
Dr. Pamela T. Luster, President

MESA COLLEGE POISED TO SERVE UNDERREPRESENTED STUDENTS

In April, 2012, Mesa College was designated by the Department of Education as a Hispanic Serving Institution (HSI).

Nearly a year later, Mesa College successfully competed for and gained AANAPISI eligibility. The Asian American and Native American Pacific Islander-Serving Institution (AANAPISI) is a federal program designed to support higher education institutions in their efforts to increase institutional self-sufficiency by improving institutional management, fiscal stability and academic programs.

“The AANAPISI designation goes hand-in-hand with the college’s designation as a HSI-serving institution,” noted President Pamela Luster. “It is further acknowledgement of Mesa College’s commitment to serving historically underrepresented students, and opens the door to Title V and Title III grants and funding that will enable us to increase access and success for even more students.”

FOCUS ON IE

Institutional Effectiveness refers to the ways in which institutions of higher education strive to optimize and continually improve the extent to how they achieve their core mission and goals.

In order to assure that San Diego Mesa College fulfills its goals (see page left), is responsive to changing needs, and continues to improve, the college in 2012-13 established the Office of Institutional Effectiveness.

Led by Dean Jill Baker, the office provides leadership to the college community as it develops, integrates, and improves college- and program-level accreditation, strategic planning, and academic program review and planning. Working with faculty and staff, it will define, create and utilize a number of processes which will offer systematic assessment and support for ongoing effectiveness.

The goal is to help build a campus-wide environment in which:

- analysis and use of relevant data permeates all processes, enabling informed discussion and decision-making,
- results of institutional self-assessment are communicated widely,
- processes provide abundant opportunities for meaningful and inclusive dialogue,
- resource allocation is in alignment with our mission, goals, and priorities, and
- regular assessment of processes and mechanisms assure they support ongoing improvement.

“This office centralizes Mesa’s efforts to put into place all of the planning we’ve worked diligently on for several years,” said President Pamela Luster. “Having this resource will help Mesa to make data-informed decisions, to increase student success and college effectiveness, and to put our plans into action.”

Student involvement at Mesa College is so high that the college received in 2011 a commendation from the Accrediting Commission for Community and Junior Colleges, Western Association of Schools and Colleges, for “student services leadership in the development of a program that provides opportunities for expanding student participation in college governance and club activities.”

In the past year, Mesa College students have:

- Created and joined 38 different clubs
- Conducted a “Get Out and Vote” campaign and voter registration drives
- Participated in the college and district governance process
- Supported community campaigns to help the homeless and fight Alzheimer’s disease, and walks to fight breast cancer, promote AIDs awareness and more
- Rallied against State budget cuts

Students Join Congressional Reps to Rally against Loan Rate Increase

Representatives Scott Peters (CA-52), Juan Vargas (CA-51), and Susan Davis (CA-53) joined President Pamela Luster, SDCCD Trustee Bernie Rhinerson, professors and student leaders at San Diego Mesa College on Friday, June 21, to deliver a loud and clear message to Congress: do not double the interest rate on federally subsidized Stafford student loans. J. Walker, Associated Students Government senator and incoming president, spoke for fellow students, many of whom struggle each semester simply to pay for rising tuition and book costs.

NOTE: Inaction by Congress caused the Stafford student loans rates to rise to 6.8 percent on July 1, 2013, but Rep. Scott Peters and other supporters rallied on. On August 9, President Obama signed into law a new way of setting interest rates for federal Stafford loans. The rates will now move with the financial markets, which mean lower rates for the coming school year.

ASG Advocates for Students

Nine Associated Student Government senators put to test their power to persuade during the 28th National Student Advocacy Conference in Washington, DC. The annual March conference educates student participants on the major issues that are critical to community colleges. Students also had the opportunity to meet with San Diego Congressman Scott Peters and Senator Dianne Feinstein to discuss important national, local and campus issues.

“San Diego Mesa College has provided me with lifelong tools. Being a part of student government is the way I give back to this institution that has given me so much.” — J. Walker

Speech and Debate Team: Solid Gold

They just keep bringing home the gold. The San Diego Mesa College Speech and Debate Team returned from an international speech and debate competition in Antwerp, Belgium, in February with wins including first place in debate – for the third time in three years. Professors Kimberley Perigo and Linda Farnan are the team’s head coaches. Catch them in the hall on the first floor of the G Building, and they’ll point to the team’s awards-packed display case, which is nearly overflowing with trophies and awards the team has won in local, state, national and international competitions.

“It was an honor to attend the civility breakfast and workshop, and to learn different ways to see dilemmas, and especially political situations, in a civilized manner.” — Naayieli Bravo, Student Ambassador

San Diego Civility Breakfast Inspires Student-Led Campaign

On October 12, Prof. Carl Luna invited students to participate in the “Restoring Respect Fall Breakfast to Promote Civility,” a community discussion held at the Joan Kroc Institute for Peace and Justice on the USD campus. Speaking on behalf of the SDCCD students was ASG President, Roberto Rosas. As a result of the breakfast, Mesa students enthusiastically created a “Mesa Be Civil, Pass It On” civility campaign.

THE MESA

EXPERIENCE

"They learn so much ... but camaraderie, team building and fun are what's priceless."
 – Prof. Morteza Mohssenzadeh

MESA STUDENTS WALK ON WATER

Members of the Mesa College Society of Hispanic Professional Engineers (SHPE) took top awards at the annual Walk on Water competition held in October at Southwestern College. According to Professor Morteza Mohssenzadeh, the goal of the competition is to promote fundamental scientific and engineering design principles. Students must consider three important design considerations — buoyancy, stability, and propulsion — in the design, construction and piloting of water shoes across a swimming pool. Mesa's "Tanker SHPE" bested eight university, high school and community college teams to place in all award categories: fastest shoes, most creative shoes, and best use of recycled materials.

"Education doesn't begin and end in the classroom.... A community college's mission is to reach out to educate everyone in the community in all available venues. That's the driving force behind my efforts to reach out to the community through the classroom, the media and community events."
 – Prof. Carl Luna

SAN DIEGO'S TOP TALKING HEAD

During San Diego's 2013 mayoral mayhem, you could turn on any news media outlet in the county or country to hear Mesa College's political pundit, Carl Luna, commenting on "all things Filner." On July 29th, The Voice of San Diego headlined an article on Luna as, "San Diego's Top Talking Head." The article quoted many local media resources referring to Luna as "our Carl Luna." But really, he is Mesa's Professor of Political Science, a position he has held since 1989.

MAKING A WORLDWIDE MARK ON STUDENT SUCCESS

As a Fulbright scholar, Professor of Chemistry Dr. Saloua Saidane planned to spend her yearlong sabbatical in her native Tunisia preparing college students for success by changing their attitudes and behavior. When the Sept. 2012 terrorist attack on the US Embassy in Tunisia cancelled Fulbright grants, Prof. Saidane carried on at her own expense, teaching personal growth classes to college students, training educators, speaking at conferences and helping wherever she could. James Bullock, US Embassy of Tunisia, summarizes her contributions, "You have done great things (in support of educational and cultural exchange between the U.S. and Tunisia) and will continue to do great things in the future."

MESA'S WOMAN OF VISION

In July, Los Angeles public television powerhouse KCET released the names of seven Southern California women with vision: women that have spent their lifetimes working for true social justice and the betterment of their community through literature, poetry, and the arts. Among them was Mesa's own Alessandra Moctezuma. To quote writer Mike Sonksen: "Moctezuma has given hundreds of young artists their first art shows or public displays of their work in Los Angeles, New York, and San Diego. Her versatility as gallery director and professor has helped Mesa College develop one of the finest art and gallery studies programs in the nation."

CLASS OF 2013 TENURED PROFESSORS

Each May, Mesa College honors those faculty members who achieve the rank of Professor and Assistant Professor. This year's honorees and their families enjoyed a lovely dinner — prepared by Mesa's culinary students — followed by awards and comments from the school Deans. Jill Moreno Ikari advanced to rank of Associate Professor, and 20 faculty members celebrated full professorship (see photo). Also honored were this year's faculty retirees, Catherine Berstch Boychuk, John Sievers, Mimi Moore and Laurie Mackenzie.

Amid cheers and glittering blue pompons, San Diego Mesa College Olympians made sure that the first homecoming game in school history on October 20th was one to remember. The event included a Mesa Memory Booth, a trivia game, and a scholarship opportunity drawing. Half-time celebrated Mesa’ ten winning athletic teams (2011-2012), scholar athletes, and the celebrated Chet DeVore Trophy. Alumna Maryanne Hernandez (pictured third from left, below) called it a “sweet homecoming.”

“My mom and I represent two generations of Mesa graduates, and I plan to keep this family legacy of education going. I so appreciate the education I received ... Mesa’s in my heart for life!”
— Maryanne Hernandez

HONORING ARNIE

Spearheaded by Coach Renee Ross, Mesa Track and Field launched the first “Arnie Robinson Invitational” in April. The high school and college track meet honored the Mesa graduate and coach who placed third at the 1972 Olympic Games, and took gold in 1976. A pillar of the track and field community, Coach Robinson has been inducted into numerous halls of fame. He was also named in 2012 as the Mesa College Distinguished Alumnus.

“No one in a lifetime can even come close to what Arnie Robinson has done for the sport of track and field.”
— Dave Evans, Mesa College Athletics Director

HELPING THOSE WHO SERVE

The call for help came from C Troop, 1-18 Calvary, stationed next door to the college at the National Guard Armory. Nearing deployment to Iraq, they had no funds for farewell holiday party. Led by student services staff, the college responded with decorations, games, toys and stuffed teddy bears, and a $275 cash donation.

- Filling a 20-yard dumpster to capacity, the “town and gown” effort that is Canyon Day removed 10 tires, four shopping carts, mattresses, bed and bike frames, golf clubs, a backseat and bumper, arundo bamboo, and tons of trash from a trailhead of Tecolote Canyon.

When life rendered her jobless and homeless, Tammy Schwinegruber, 43, strengthened her resolve to succeed and returned to college full-time in 2010 to pursue a new career. Tammy graduated with multiple degrees and plans to pursue a degree in chemical engineering at UC Riverside.

With the double awards in 2013, Mesa College can count seven JKC awards in seven years.

Gracia Molina de Pick Gifts $80,000 to Mesa Chicana/o Studies

The occasion also marked the signing of an $80,000 endowment by the Pick family to Mesa’s Chicana/o Studies Department. The fund will support the continued lecture series named in her honor, the expansion of programs, and create an annual student scholarship in her honor.

Mesa College will name the glass gallery exhibit space in the Humanities, Languages and Multicultural Studies Building rotunda in her honor.

FOUNDATION

FOR SUCCESS

Student Services Center

District officials, former and current college administrators, students and staff, and even the sun showed up for the February opening celebration of the new Student Services Center. The center was an immediate hit when it opened in fall, 2012. In January, the SSC received LEED Gold certification. Nineteen student services departments are now housed in the facility, truly a “one stop shop” for student success.

Math+Science Complex

In the center of campus, the massive Math+Science Complex rose like a Phoenix. The new 206,000 square feet project is a four-story building consisting of classrooms, lecture rooms, computer and teaching laboratories, and faculty support space. Specialty teaching spaces include a greenhouse and an astronomy observation center. Exterior teaching spaces feature globally themed micro climate gardens, including an Australian garden, a South African garden and a San Diego native species garden. Completed on time and on budget, the building opens for classes in spring semester 2014.

San Diego Mesa College Social and Behavioral Sciences Building

Study in the fields of social and behavioral sciences is poised to reach new levels of distinction with the April groundbreaking of the new three-story, $40.5 million building. The San Diego Mesa College Social and Behavioral Sciences Building will feature 66,000 SF of “smart” classrooms; Psychology, Anthropology and Geography laboratories; and Communications Studies studios. A series of courtyards will open toward and complement the future Mesa College Quad. A multi-use patio will crown the third floor of the structure, which is on track to obtain LEED Gold certification from the United States Green Building Council (USGBC).

CE at Mesa College Campus

The campus and community welcomed the opening of the $22.5 million Continuing Education Mesa College Campus. The new two-story building consolidates programs formerly held at nearby community sites. It offers English as a second language and parent education programs, as well as disability support services and enrichment programs for seniors.
